Sometimes Not Knowing Is Best
It's not just the money, it's also the annual struggle with Form 1040 and its "carry over to line 23 on page 26a and to line 58 on schedule Z" type of inanity that makes "income tax" an emotional matter with many citizens.

But somehow we can't see how the proposal - to shoot back to each taxpayer by return mail a computer printout itemizing how much tax he has paid for each of some 40 federal functions - would make the process any less painful.

The theory, presumably, that if a citizen knows how his money is being spent, the citizen will not so much begrudge contributing said sum for said spending.

Perhaps this is so, in some categories. Some citizens might feel proud of contributing enough to the defense budget, for example, to supply gas and oil for a tank for a year. Or be glad to note that so many dollars or cents of their hard-earned cash went into the battle against cancer.

But, on the other hand, it's just possible that many recipients of such form might become more enraged, not less, at the entire process, by realizing some of the ways in which dollars earned with such effort are squandered with such ease.

Perhaps the final blow, to some taxpayer seething with ire at seeing his dollars dispatched with such open-handedness, could be the "P.S." which would fittingly end such a form: "The cost of preparing this computer tabulation of your individual tax payment... $1.35." — Jacksonville (Fla.) Florida Times-Union

Man's World

A computerized survey of elementary-school reading matter discloses that "he" turns up three times as often as "she," and "boy" occurs twice as often as "girl," and "his" occurs 3.5 times more than "her."

Peter Davies, editor of American Heritage's dictionary division, says that the findings disclose "our culture saying what role is expected of kids." "Wife" appears three times as often as "husband," for example, which proves to Editor Davies that society stresses the role of wife but "for the boy, husband is not an important role."

The use of "mother" and "father" is almost equal, but in all other family relationships - nephew-niece, aunt-uncle, grandmother-grandfather - males are mentioned more often. Nevertheless, said Mr. Davies, "it would be a nightmare if women libs tried to control the he-she ratio."

That could only have come from a him. — Norfolk (Va.) Virginian-Pilot

Strike

Reports from London said that Big Ben failed to strike Monday. That's the only thing in London that hasn't struck recently. — Atlanta (Ga.) Constitution

Music Students Turning From Bach to Rock

By TERRY RYAN
Associated Press Writer

The coloratura soprano voice of Caroline Stratton ranged through arias in the practice rooms of the New England Conservatory of Music two years ago.

She now is belting hard rock numbers with the Fort Mudge Memorial Dumb.

"I didn't enjoy what they were doing with music," she explained, in referring to her Conservatory days. "They were putting too much emphasis on details instead of the music. I can get into rock so much more."

The metamorphosis of Caroline Stratton, classic to rock, is not unique. Serious music students in increasing numbers are turning their backs on Bach for something more in keeping with their era.

1951 Olds Will Cost $5,000 Up

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Want to buy a 1951 Oldsmobile 98? It'll cost you more than $5,000.

That's one price the owner already has rejected.

Reason for such a high price is that the car has just eight miles on the speedometer and is nearly in the same condition the day it was sold in April 1951 by Balch Motor Co. of Little Rock to the late Mr. and Mrs. John P. Ferrell of Little Rock.

The car is black with white-wall tires, an automatic transmission, radio and a heater. Twenty years ago the car sold for about $4,600.

The car turned up last week in Charlotte, N.C., in possession of Boyce Goolsby, who said he bought the car from a friend last year with the idea of keeping it for speculation. He said his friend found the car in Little Rock where it had been stored in a heated garage — unused — for 18 years.

Goolsby advertised the car for sale for $2,750 in Charlotte newspapers last Thursday. He sold it Thursday night to Horace Wells, a Charlotte construction company president, for the asking price.

Wells said Wednesday that he has been offered "more than $5,000 for the car" already and that he plans to sell it, but says he's in a hurry. Wells said he bought the car on "intuition" that it was a good buy.

Fred Balch, owner of Balch Olds in Little Rock, remembered the original sale to the Ferrells, who were natives of Arkansas with land holdings at Batesville and Newport.

Balch said the car stayed in the farm's service department for several months. He said the Ferrells supervised the unloading of the car when it arrived in town and that Mrs. Ferrell also supervised care of the car while it was stored. He said special polishes and rags were used to keep the car shining and in perfect condition. "Mrs. Ferrell even did some of the polishing," he said.

Balch said after several months, the Ferrells took the car and stored it either in a North Little Rock garage or in the garage at the Albert Pike Hotel, where the Ferrells lived. Balch said when Ferrell died about five years ago, Mrs. Ferrell had the car stored again at Balch.

During the interim, Balch said he would see the Ferrells occasionally and they would tell him they had not driven the car. When it was returned for storage at Balch, he said he inspected the car and it looked as new as the day they bought it. "The battery was still good," he said. "It kicked right off."

Goolsby said that when Mrs. Ferrell died a couple of years ago, the estate sold the car to his friend.

Balch was at a loss to explain why the Ferrells never drove the car after buying it. "They used a taxicab all the time," he recalled. "They had a cab on call all the time, and it was always washed before they rode in it."

Many Canadians Feel They're Not Getting Square Deal From U.S.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

TORONTO (AP) — "We don't want to be Americans, but we want them as friends. We love Americans as neighbors, but we don't want them as landlords."

That sums up the sentiment of a growing number of Canadians who resent U.S. economic domination. The words are those of Peter C. Newman, a spokesman for those he calls "moderate nationalists" while conceding that "nationalism" may not be the precisely correct description.

Such Canadians feel that Canada has become desperate, like the farmer selling his land bit by bit to keep his head above water.

Canada, they suggest, constantly sells pieces of the country to U.S. interests so as to remain an industrial power with one of the world's highest living standards. They fear the cost may involve loss of economic independence—and political and cultural independence as well.

This feeling has nagged for years. But President Nixon's "new economic policy" has provided a shock needed to jolt Canadians into understanding what it's all about, says Walter L. Gordon, honorary chairman of the Committee for an Independent Canada. Formed a year ago, the committee now has more than 250,000 members, including business, political and intellectual leaders.

Gordon, a Liberal party member and former finance minister, now is chairman of Canadian Corporate Management Co. He champions the idea that Canada gradually must regain control of key industries as a matter of national survival.

Some in Canada call this economic nationalism. It would be Canadianization, different than the sort of nationalization American business has found elsewhere in the world.

That sort of independence has become a difficult goal.

Nearly two-thirds of all factories operating in Canada are U.S.-owned. Nine of every 10 plants big enough to fire more than 5,000 persons are owned by foreigners, mostly Americans.

Americans control 62 per cent of Canadian petroleum and natural gas, 52 per cent of mining and smelting, 97 per cent of the auto industry, 78 per cent of chemicals, 77 per cent of the manufacture of electrical apparatus.

Close to three-quarters of all Canadian exports go to the United States. Imports from the United States, more than $10 billion annually, are an important slice of the U.S. economy.

Now comes President Nixon's 10 per cent surtax on imports. It excepts raw materials but by official reckoning affects $3 billion worth of Canada's manufactured goods a year. Canadian "economic nationalists" describe the tax as a formidable wall against Canada's manufactures, tending to relegate this country to the role of an interland supply house for the U.S. industrial machine.

To people like Newman and Gordon it suggests that there no longer is any "special relationship" between neighbors who have shared peace and prosperity for a century.

As long as two years ago the government of Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau had a task force studying the question of foreign ownership. Its report was handed in last May.

Cautiously, the report suggested that the noneconomic impact of foreign direct investment may require special ownership rules in selected industries.

The report suggests Canada should concentrate on protecting industrial priorities and bargaining for better deals while carefully avoiding risk of retaliation or the discouragement of new investment from abroad. Key words are "screening" to keep out what is not of value and "flexibility" to avoid rigid positions which could hurt Canada in the long run.

There lies the dilemma. Canada is so closely linked to the United States, so dependent economically, that her responses to U.S. actions could hurt her more than her huge neighbor.

To cushion the blow, the government has announced cuts in income taxes and in corporate taxes to stimulate business, plus a multimillion-dollar works program to create jobs.

"We could give companies five or 10 years to work things out," says Gordon. "We would want a majority of shares to be held in Canada. We would want managers and a majority of directors to be Canadian citizens."

40 Applications to Hike Prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Price Commission announced today it has received 40 new price increase applications by 37 companies, bringing the total to 168 applications from 143 firms.

In its first denial, the commission rejected the Bassett Furniture Co.'s request for a 1.8 per cent price hike.

Man Held in Shooting

HELENA, Ark. (AP) — Sheriff Marion Hickey said today that Charley Jones, 58, of Memphis was being held in connection with the shooting death Thursday of another man.

Hickey said Woodrow W. Jones, 56, also of Memphis, was shot in the chest with a .32-caliber pistol in a car on Arkansas 49 about 11 miles west of here. The car was owned by Charley Jones, a black, Hickey said. Woodrow Jones, who was white, was a native of Phillips County and was a truck driver.

Injunction to Halt U.S. Dock Strike

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal courts in six Atlantic and Gulf coast cities have ordered striking longshoremen back to work, and the Justice Department is seeking similar action in six more cities to end the 58-day-old walkout for an 80-day cooling-off period.

On orders from President Nixon, the government obtained temporary restraining orders Friday in New York; Philadelphia; Baltimore; Mobile, Ala.; Alexandria, Va., and Savannah, Ga., to end the dock strike under the Taft-Hartley Act. The orders affect 37,000 workers.

Justice Department attorneys were authorized to seek initial 10-day temporary injunctions.

Court hearings are scheduled today in Boston, Houston and New Orleans; and suits are pending in Miami; Portland, Maine, and Providence, R.I.

Earlier court actions in Tampa, Fla., and New Orleans had ordered longshoremen back to work in those cities and in Savannah; Jacksonville, Fla., and Charleston and Georgetown, S.C.

The New Orleans injunction, stayed pending appeal, held the strike there was an illegal secondary boycott.

The initial back-to-work orders may be supplemented with injunctions to stretch the cooling-off period to the maximum 90 days allowed by the Taft-Hartley law.

Meanwhile, federal mediators will attempt to bring union and management representatives back together to resolve their differences.

Talks between the AFL-CIO International Longshoremen's Association and shipping association negotiators broke off in Miami earlier this week in a dispute over guaranteed man-hour provisions in the welfare and pension clauses of the proposed new contract.

Nixon then ordered Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell to move to temporarily halt the strike.

Most of the 45,000 idled dock workers have been out since Oct. 1. Some smaller locals on the western Gulf Coast stayed on the job until two days after their talks with the West Gulf Coast Maritime Association broke off Nov. 13.

With the exception of those workers who already went back to their jobs under previous court orders, the longshoremen are expected to begin returning to work late today or Sunday.

Undersecretary of Transportation James M. Beggs told the New York court that as of last week the dock strike had idled 212 ships with 1.4 million tons of imports waiting to be unloaded.

Keystone Kops Figure Dies

SOUTH PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Hank Mann, believed to be the last survivor of Mack Sennett's original Keystone Kops, has died here at the age of 84.

Entering motion pictures in 1912, Mann played one of the bumbling, bowler-hatted policemen in numerous movies and made occasional character actor appearances as late as 1960.

He died Thursday at the Braewood Convalescent Hospital. Funeral services were not announced and will be private.

He is survived by his widow, Dolly.

Postmasters Are Named

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Regional Postmaster General Carl C. Ulaker announced today that five persons have been appointed to serve as postmasters in Arkansas.

They are: Oda T. Stoubaugh, Center Ridge; Mrs. Opal R. Johnson, Hermitage; Clifton B. Jennings, London; Mrs. Maude E. Reding, Sulphur Rock and Garry W. Williams, Viola.

Ted Boswell Is Better Prepared Now for a Political Campaign

By TOMMY YATES
Associated Press Writer

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Ted Boswell, the silver-haired Little Rock lawyer from Bryant, is about the same today as he was in 1968, except he is better prepared for political campaigning in 1972 than he was in 1968 or would have been in 1970.

He is still the free-talker with the magnetic personality who weaved a spell with the voters that nearly carried him into the 1968 Democratic gubernatorial runoff in his first attempt at a statewide office.

He was billed as the dark-horse then as he is now in being considered a candidate for Sen. John L. McClellan's seat in the Senate that comes up for election next year.

Even though he has not announced for the Senate race yet, and he isn't expected to anytime soon, the 39-year-old Democrat is considered as being in the race until he gets out, instead of vice versa.

It is, however, still somewhat of a mystery why he did not run for governor in 1970 after such a strong showing in the 1968 race. In his official statement, Boswell said he did not feel like subjecting his family to another "honest but inadequately financed campaign so soon after the last one," and because of financial aspects.

It also was considered by some that he had an eye on the 1972 Senate race and feared that another setback in 1970 would kill his chances for that position. Boswell says there is nothing to that.

"The prospect that I might not win in 1970, that's always present in a potential candidate's mind, but it had no influence," Boswell said in an interview. "I knew we could make a strong race in 1970, but you've got to know more why I ran in 1968 to understand why I didn't run in 1970."

He said he did not decide to enter the race until weeks before the filing deadline. At the time, he pointed out, "I was very active in trying to bring about constitutional revision and reform in my own party," he said. "I called on 12 different people in 1968 and urged them to run for governor." Boswell said he would have worked for any of the 12 and said he told each that "we'll get behind you."

Boswell said he talked to Joe Purcell and Hayes McClerkin but "they wouldn't run. Then a young man named Dale Bumpers advised me he would and I said, 'good, get in,' but he didn't."

"Then, in 1970 you couldn't keep them out with a stick," he said. "All I ever had wanted to do was change my party, breathe some new life into it and make it a viable, effective party. I could see this being accomplished after the '68 race."

"I never had been possessed with the idea that I have to have political position and power. I have never sought political power. The nomination for governor in 1970 began taking the position of who would have power in the party. I was concerned more with reviving the party. I think the race in '68, even though we lost, had a tremendous effect on the party in accomplishing that."

"One of the things in 1969-70 that hurt me was the assumption I would run because I had come so close. I'm an individual who believes there are issues and problems and men to answer those issues. That's why as this thing develops into a Senate race, people still identify me as a person who believes that way, not someone who believes in political power and prestige."

He said that "as things are developing now, if I can have the forums and opportunity to express myself on issues and problems that confront Arkansas, and to no less degree Arkansas, I believe when I've had this opportunity, I believe the people can understand why I'm considering this race."

McClellan has indicated he will seek re-election next year, and Rep. David Pryor of Camden is considering running. Boswell says their candidacies will have "no effect on my decision."

It is generally thought that Pryor would prefer not to have to face McClellan, but that he is afraid Boswell might get into the race and upset the senator, knocking Pryor out of the picture for several years. So, one close observer put it, it's now or never for Pryor.

On the possibility of a three-man race, Boswell said he did not think it would do him any good to analyze it in that way.

"The more people in there obviously (means) the votes are going to be divided and certainly it could favor me," Boswell said. "If he (McClellan) is forced into a runoff, he'll be in trouble, certainly that's the tradition, but it doesn't always hold true."

There is the opportunity for more direct attention in a head-to-head race, Boswell said. However, he said he thought the people would give anyone in that race a good opportunity to be "seen, heard and a chance to express himself."

Boswell is already expressing himself. He has visited and lectured at six college campuses this year and plans to go to four others before Jan. 1. After that he is expected to hit many of the civic club luncheons.

Part of this string of speaking engagements is to regain some of the name recognition lost after the 1968 race and part is "I think I'm saying some pretty important things and from the people's reactions they seem to think so, too."

The name recognition part does not seem to worry him that much. "I think there is an adverse effect on being out of politics — some might say I never really was in politics — but I haven't found any problems, when I'm able to get out and move around, of people remembering that race (1968)."

Such a long layoff from active politics, he says, may have some favorable aspects in the long run. "In case I run, there'll be fresh new issues, be a chance for people to get a renewed or new look at me," he said. "I'm sure not running in 1970 had some mitigating effects on people remembering me, but I don't look on any adverse effect."

"Every race is different, and if I make this race, there will be enough to talk about and enough being talked about so that layoff won't have an adverse effect."

A favorable effect, he said, was learning that running for office was such a physical, mental and financial ordeal "that you needed to put some time between it and when you decide to do it again." He said that by not running in 1970 gave him the needed time to become where he is now "more nearly adjusted to another race."

HONOR of being the youngest His Honor in the nation appears to be held by Jody Smith, 19, of Ayshire, Iowa, a student at Emmetsburg Junior College. Elected this fall as 18-to-20-year-olds voted nationwide for the first time, he edged out a 19-year-old, in Ohio, as youngest mayor.

Red China Clashes With Soviet Union

By WILLIAM N. OATIS
Associated Press Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Red China has clashed with the Soviet Union for the second time in the United Nations and wound up alongside the United States in rejecting a Kremlin call for a world disarmament conference.

The future of the conference is so uncertain that, when the 131-nation General Assembly finished debate on it Friday night, no immediate agreement was reached on when to vote on the proposal.

U.S. Ambassador Christopher H. Phillips, asked that the voting be postponed to permit consultations toward a new resolution that would forward the issue to the assembly's fall 1972 session.

Chinese delegate Chiao Kuan-hua, following up his earlier proposal that the resolution not be put to the vote, said that, if it was, China would not participate in it.

Despite this, Soviet Ambassador Jacob A. Malik announced acceptance of some suggestions for amendment of the resolution and expressed hope that it would be "supported and approved by the General Assembly."

Making his windup speech for the resolution, Malik said anybody who claimed it was not clear—as Chiao had done Wednesday—"is trying to delay or complicate the convening of the conference."

In an allusion to Chiao's blast Wednesday at the 1963 Moscow partial nuclear-test-ban treaty, Malik said those who criticize it "do not themselves cease their nuclear tests and do not propose any positive grounds for the solution of this problem."

Returning to his earlier theme of a "Sino-American duet" against the conference, the Soviet minister said, "We are against negativism as to... this conference regardless of whether this negativism is evinced in a solo or as a duet." Chiao retorted that words about a "Sino-American duet of negativism" were "cheap and demagogic remarks which are not worth refuting."

The Soviet Union has rocket forces in Mongolia, north of China; and the United States has nuclear bases in Japan, east of China, he said, and in other parts of the world, "the Soviet leadership considers that the final say rests only with an agreement between the Soviet Union and the United States."

"Is this not a duet?" he asked.

Chiao said Malik's "Sino-American duet" speech was that of a superpower "which lords it over, and orders, other countries about." He accused the Soviet Union of "great power chauvinism," "social-imperialism" and "crude behavior" toward other countries and said China needed no lecture from Malik on how to speak and act in the United Nations.

IRS Expresses Confusion Over Price Controls

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — What was it like for the Internal Revenue Service when President Nixon assigned it the job as answer man for his wage and price controls?

"It was like someone telling me to go in and quarterback the Baltimore Colts," said Hardy Root, an IRS public relations man in the Greensboro office.

Root was standing in the Centaphone complex of the IRS office where tax service representatives (TSRs) were answering hundreds of telephone calls over toll-free lines from North Carolinians who were confused about the controls.

A dozen TSRs on shift worked furiously to answer complex inquiries about a huge government program that no one with the IRS knew very much about a few weeks ago.

Calendar of Events

Sunday, November 28

Mr. and Mrs. James A. Gunter, Sr., will celebrate their 60th wedding anniversary with a reception at their home, 900 East Avenue A, Sunday, November 28, from 3 to 5 p.m. Their children will host the occasion to which everyone is invited. No gifts, please.

Rev. W.E. Thomason of Prescott will preach at Patmos Baptist Church, Sunday, Nov. 28 at 11 a.m. The public is invited.

Saturday, December 4

The annual Christmas Dance at the Hope Country Club will be Saturday, December 4, from 9 till 1. Host couples are Mr. and Mrs. Jack Caldwell, Mr. and Mrs. Billy Bob White, Mr. and Mrs. Talbot Feild, and Mr. and Mrs. John Graves.

Centerville Club Meets

Centerville Homemakers Club met for their November meeting with Mrs. R.C. Snelgrove as hostess. Mrs. Vernie Goynes opened the meeting by reading the thought of the month, "In life as in a mirror, you can never get more than you put in it".

Mrs. E.O. Bright led the group in singing, "Count your Blessings". Mrs. Snelgrove took her devotion from Chapter 1 of Samuel. Mrs. Hugh Bearden and Mrs. Mae Campbell also had part on the program. The meeting closed by repeating Homemakers prayer.

During the social hour punch and cookies were served to fourteen members and three guests, Mrs. George Langston, Mrs. Addie Harper and Mrs. David Waddle.

KEEP HER MOVING

A great gift idea for a special woman is an enrollment in a dance, exercise or yoga club.

CLIMATE CHANGE

Everyone should have a travel-anywhere outfit. It should be something that will be just right even when traveling from one climate to another. Such as a cardigan sleeveless shirtwaist dress for the warmer weather that comes with a matching jacket that can be put on when you arrive in a colder city.

LONG HOLIDAY LOOK

The long body dress with clinging bodice and flaring skirt done in a soft banlon jersey is a great holiday look. Dress it up with pearls or jewels for partying. Or belt it with chains and leathers for sports wear.

TASTY LIPS

Now on the market are lip glosses that taste as good as they look. The ripe colors are fruit-flavored with cherry, pineapple, nectarine or strawberry.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Mother's Health Affects Her Baby

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I would greatly appreciate your going into detail as much as possible about expectant mothers (I am very early in pregnancy) indulging in one-and-a-half cups of coffee in the morning (no more) when it tastes so good, that is every day, along with an occasional cocktail (once a week, no more).

Now, if you feel this is going to harm baby in any way, please state. I am also planning on nursing my baby. Something special which my mother did with all five of us girls.

Dear Reader — Your question is a good one. Most of our information on medicine that people commonly take, such as aspirin, or the effects of coffee, alcohol, nicotine and tranquilizers, is based on adult responses. We have limited knowledge about how many things we think are safe really affect the tiny, developing baby.

It is known that babies of women taking dope are often born as addicts and it requires a lot of skill to save the baby. Imagine, withdrawal symptoms at birth.

Unless you develop other difficulties, I should not think that one or two cups of coffee a day will harm either you or the baby. If you are concerned about it, why not switch to a decaffeinated product and still enjoy your morning coffee? One cocktail once a week is not likely to cause any harm to the baby either. Fortunately, the things the mother takes are diluted by both her blood and body fluids before it reaches the baby.

The blood alcohol level will be about the same in the baby's blood as in the mother's blood. Because the baby gets its oxygen from the mother's blood through the placenta in the womb, by the time the baby's blood reaches its tiny brain there is less oxygen in the blood than normally is present after birth. This makes the baby's brain more sensitive to alcohol and possibly other drugs and tranquilizers than after birth. Aspirin, tranquilizers, alcohol, caffeine in colas, coffee and tea do pass into the baby's circulation. This is why the mother's health is so critical during pregnancy.

Children born to mothers who smoke have been reported to be more likely to have convulsions than babies born to nonsmoking mothers.

Having a baby is much like preparing for an athletic event. The mother should stay in the best of health, avoiding exposure to contagious diseases. She should avoid getting fat, eat a well-balanced diet for both herself and the baby, exercise properly and avoid too many bad habits. The first prerequisite to a healthy baby is a healthy mother. Oh, yes, congratulations.

Dresses rather than pants will highlight the after-five scene for spring as seen in the current American Designers Showings in New York. Lace-patterned cord and white woven cotton border print (left) has a rising waistline and snug bodice studded with rhinestones and a separate triangle scarf. This is a Betse Cann design for Gino Charles. From Malcolm Starr's resort and spring collections come another two winners. Patio dress (center) in green and white cotton border print striped in vivid yellow and red with deep side slit is from his resort collection by Elinor Simmons. From the spring collection comes the twin print dinner dress (right) in navy and white cotton voile.

Experts don't need to use the code word ARCH. They automatically analyze the lead. Review the bidding; Count their winners and losers and ask themselves: How can I make this hand?

North's two-club call was Stayman to see if South could show a four-card major. When South bid two diamonds to deny this, North made the simple call of three no-trump.

South put his king of spades on East's jack. He analyzed the lead as fourth best from a suit headed by ace-10. He Counted his winners and saw that he could make a lot of tricks if he could finesse successfully in either minor suit.

Then he asked himself, "How can I make this hand if both finesses are wrong?"

He found a satisfactory answer. He could score one spade, four hearts, three tricks in one minor suit and one in the other for a total of nine.

Which finesse should he take?

There was an easy answer to that one. He wanted to keep East out of the lead since a lead from West could not possibly hurt him. South cached the king and queen of hearts; led a heart to dummy's jack. Cached the ace on general principles and led the jack of diamonds for a finesse.

West took his king and made his best play of a club. South refused this finesse and cashed out three diamonds for his contract.

Dress-up Time Again

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — The clean-up campaign goes further than environment and ecology. The fashion showings of the American Designers for resort and Spring 1972 make it quite clear that the designers intend to clean up the mess they feel we have made in our attempt to "do our own thing." They believe there should be no more amateur-type fashion chaos. And what's more, they feel that the consumer wants guidance.

The suit, dress and sweater and jacket dress are today's approach to the layered look. You don't have to put it all together yourself, often making fashion mistakes. It's all done for you — just like it used to be years ago.

The skirt suit is more in fashion for spring than the pantsuit. And the three-quarter coat, teamed with shirt and skirt or pants, will nudge out the full-length coat. The dress, too, will once again stand by itself.

Elegance in its literal definition—esthetic, refined, with good taste, distinction, purity and luxury—is top man on the fashion totem pole. And so see-throughs and brazen nudity are out. But bare shoulders and backs, halter necks and cut-in shoulders return to the evening scene with all their glamor.

The small, tight armhole is now deepening. The waistline is shaped in (and heaven help many of us who haven't worried about it for a long, long time). Shoulders are wider and all skirts flare at the hem. Clothes are less leggy, too.

Hemlines for Spring '72 range from the top of the knee to just above the ankle. No more arguments. The acceptable span is a wide one.

Collars rate fashion interest this time around from the white Kitty Foyle type to sailor collars and even the organdy fichu.

For evening, pants have virtually disappeared. This is the year of the luxurious evening gown. And, again, shades of the past, the cocktail dress is back—with a hemline about eight inches from the floor.

Fabrics are soft and clinging but have a firm, controlled feeling.

For anyone who gussied up to sally forth in the late

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) is a leading civil rights group in the United States, with about 500,000 members of all races. The World Almanac recalls that the NAACP was founded in 1909 by a group of whites headed by Mary White Ovington, to help achieve political and social equality for the American Negro.

FOOD FOR AMERICANS

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

Hostesses can help their guests survive the holidays. Starting with Thanksgiving, most people are encouraged to eat and drink too much. Beverages can be mild and food servings on the light side without losing points with family, friends or business guests. Instant punch mixes help solve the beverage problem since most are good to drink as refreshing nonalcoholic drinks or as a stronger punch with wine or liquor added. A festive punch makes good company for a Hot Turkey Canape made with refrigerator biscuits and leftover turkey.

BLUSHING PARTY PUNCH

- 1 envelope instant champagne punch mix
- 2 cups cold water
- 2 cups rose wine (optional)
- 2 cups ginger ale, chilled

Gradually stir contents of envelope of champagne punch mix into cold water; stir until completely dissolved. Add rose wine; chill before serving. Just before serving, pour chilled mixture over ice (1 tray of ice cubes or 3-cup ice mold). Add ginger ale. Makes about 2 quarts or 16 4-ounce servings.

For a nonalcoholic punch: prepare as above but omit

This Fig Pudding Is Special

FOR HOLIDAY TIME — A fig pudding, baked in a covered mold in the oven, and served with hard sauce.

By Cecily Brownstone

Associated Press Food Editor

To round off a holiday dinner featuring roast turkey, you may want to serve this fig pudding.

The recipe is special because although the dessert has the attributes of steamed pudding, it's baked in a mold in the oven instead of being cooked over boiling water. To achieve its particular texture and flavor, the mold is covered.

COVERED BAKED FIG PUDDING

- 2 cups unsifted flour
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg

- 1/2 cup (1/4-pound stick) butter
- 1 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
- 1 cup buttermilk
- 2 cups chopped dried figs
- 1 cup coarsely chopped walnuts

On a piece of wax paper thoroughly stir together the flour, baking soda, cinnamon and nutmeg.

In a large mixing bowl cream butter and sugar. Add dry ingredients and buttermilk; beat until smooth and thoroughly blended. Fold in figs and walnuts.

Turn into a greased 2-quart mold spread evenly. Cover mold with its greased lid or a piece of greased aluminum foil.

A Skeleton for Laughs?

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

Where could I get hold of a life-size plastic skeleton, like they have on TV shows and in medical colleges? I want to put it in the passenger side of my van and make people smile. —DAVE

DEAR DAVE:

Smile? They'd be hysterical—and YOU might land in the pokey for contributing to a highway accident. Instead of a fake skeleton, why not settle for a real girl in the passenger side of your van? —HELEN

DEAR DAVE:

That's my Mom: always matchmaking!

A medical school might sell you an old worn-out skeleton for cheap, or maybe you could get one through a medical supply house—if you have plenty of money. I don't think there's any law that says you can't carry fake skeletons in your van.

But don't make Mr. Bones a regular passenger. He'd be a lousy conversationalist. —SUE

DEAR SUE AND HELEN:

I see this guy at least twice a week and I love every minute of it. But I don't think I love him enough to have sex with him which is what he asks sometimes, but he isn't pushy about it.

My girl friend and I have discussed this and she says it's all right if you care about the guy. I think she told me this just to get in good with her boy friend who is a friend of my guy, and you know how these fellas work rose wine; use 1 quart ginger ale.

HOT TURKEY CANAPES

- 1 package refrigerator biscuits
- 1 cup minced cooked turkey
- 1/2 cup finely diced celery
- 1/4 cup mayonnaise
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon Tabasco
- 1/4 teaspoon curry powder
- 1 pimiento, cut in strips

Bake biscuits as directed on package. Meanwhile, combine remaining ingredients except pimiento. Cut biscuits in half and top each with a teaspoon of turkey mixture. Garnish with pimiento strip. Broil about 3 inches from heat 2 to 3 minutes or until hot. Makes 20 canapes.

SLOPE BRIGHTENERS

You'll never be lost on the slopes with the new colors in ski outfits. Shiny parkas and quilted knickers for skiing come in colors like canary yellow, bright orange and royal purple. Ski jumpers may be seen in bright jumbo plaided madras or patchwork quilting. The end of the colorless ski days.

together to make a girl see it their way.

It's two against one, and going on three or four because my girl friend has got other kids to tell me sex is "natural" and I shouldn't be the only holdout.

I'm darn tired of people trying to change me to what THEY think I should be but I'm awfully afraid I might give in. Should I? —TEMPTED

DEAR TEMPTED:

Don't drop your standards just to be accepted by "the crowd." They'll think less of you (for being so easily persuaded) and you'll think even less of yourself.

Besides, if you take a girl friend's word on what to do with a guy, you'll be acting HER way, and he's dating YOU. Sure, he tries, but I'll bet he likes you because you're "different." Keep it that way! —SUE

DEAR TEMPTED:

All your life you'll find people who push to bring your standards down to their level, often so that they can justify their own actions. Thus you'll find the clock-watches at work putting you down because you're truly interested in your job; and the dopers calling you square; and the drop-outs making noises about "Establishment freaks."

"To thine own self be true" is so old it's corny, but I can't think of a better way of saying it. —HELEN

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

My problem is big only to me. I can't stop biting my fingernails. I've tried will power and also all kinds of horrible tasting junk, but nothing works. Can anyone help? —SICK OF A BAD HABIT

DEAR SICK:

Nervous habits are miserably hard to break because you don't really want to lose them. They release tension—which is sometimes harder to bear without a crutch than raw, ugly fingers. Since you've tried all the routine "cures," we're going to ask our readers for THEIR special secrets.

Will anyone who has licked the nail-biting habit, please tell us how? —H & S

U.S. tourists have been streaming to Mexico on vacation for years, but only recently have the gringos started going there for investments. Yields of 12 to 14 per cent are becoming one of the country's major attractions, rivaling the beach at Acapulco.

Not long ago the idea of investing good sound U.S. money in Mexico was generally good for an incredulous look, if not a snicker. Today, with the U.S. dollar having its troubles, the peso begins to look pretty good (it's one of the world's hard currencies for international payments).

As seen from the United States with our recent history of destructive inflation, the growing Mexican economy looks appealingly stable, with its 10-year average of 3 per cent inflation. And in view of Wall Street's recent woes, its Mexican counterpart the "bolsa" no longer looks like an amusing banana-republic operation to many U.S. investors.

Hope Star SPORTSFavorites in Pro Play on Weekend

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The defending Super Bowl champion Baltimore Colts are in a precarious position, 1½ games behind front-running Miami and facing the Oakland Raiders. But they will maintain their shot at overhauling the Dolphins in American Conference East by upsetting the Raiders in one of the key games on an 11-game Sunday-Monday program.

That, at least, is the view from here—a view that also opens on a Buffalo victory over New England that will end the Bills' perfect record after 10 consecutive defeats.

Here are all the picks, noting that last week's record was a best-of-the season 9-4:

Baltimore 24, Oakland 17—The AFC West leading Raiders lead the league in scoring and Daryle Lamonica leads the league in attempting to score via the bomb. The Colts' zone defense, however, knows how to de-fuse that type attack. Baltimore did just that in last year's AFC championship.

Miami 31, Chicago 20—There doesn't seem to be any stopping the Dolphins with the best record in the NFL, a seven-game winning streak and all those weapons—Bob Griese, Paul Warfield, Larry Csonka, Jim Kiick. Monday night TV, ABC, 9 p.m., EST.

Minnesota 14, Atlanta 10—Former Minnesota Coach Norm Van Brocklin returns to the land of the frigid north with his Falcons and the NFC Central leading Vikings should be ready for a cool reception with their awesome defense.

Washington 24, Philadelphia 21—The Redskins' Over-The-Hill Gang is 1-3-1 in last five games and Eagles' Beardless Wonders are 3-1-1.

San Francisco 27, New York Jets 24—Assuming John Brodie stays mostly on the ground with NFC West contending 49ers and Joe Namath stays mostly on the sidelines. Jets' defenses confusing passers.

Pittsburgh 34, Denver 14—Terry Bradshaw getting better every week; Broncos getting weaker every week.

Cleveland 23, Houston 14—Le-roy Kelly gallops through Oilers for another 100-yard day as Browns remain in AFC Central race with Steelers.

Green Bay 21, New Orleans 17—John Brockington will do for the Packers against the Saints what Kelly does for the Browns.

New York Giants 28, St. Louis 17—Fran Tarkenton passing extremely well. Cardinals playing poorly.

Cincinnati 28, San Diego 24—Bengals playing effectively since Virgil Carter's return. Chargers may be scrambled with Sid Gillman's resignation.

Buffalo 33, New England 30—The Patriots just squeezed by the last time they met, but it's on Buffalo's home grounds this time.

College Basketball Preview

By RALPH NOVAK

NEW YORK — (NEA)—College basketball goes into the 1971-72 season facing the end of two eras: (1) the era of its you-scratch-my-back-I'll-scratch-yours agreement with the pros and (2) the era of its domination by UCLA.

The desultory struggle of college underclassmen following Spencer Haywood into pro basketball became a stampede at the end of last season when a court ruling in the Haywood case said the pros could not refuse to sign athletes just because they had not finished college.

In fact, a large part of what would have been the 1971-72 college All-America team packed up their hardships in a pro scout's carpet-bag and strode off to the greater, more lucrative glories of the Bigs. Julius Erving of Massachusetts, George McGinnis of Indiana, Johnny Neumann of Mississippi, Dana Lewis of Tulsa, Rick Fisher of Colorado, Nate Williams of Utah State, Phil Chenier of California, Tom Payne of Kentucky and Mickey Davis of Duquesne, among others, were willing to give up a year or two of college eligibility and the ABA and NBA owners proved willing to believe they were all poor enough to deserve a chance at a few thousand quick bucks.

Fortunately for the talent-bankrupted colleges, they have another attraction: what promises to be a wide-open scramble for the NCAA title that UCLA has held seven of the last eight years. Under coach John Wooden (with assists from Gail Goodrich, Walt Hazzard, Lew Alcindor/Kareem Jabbar and Sidney Wicks, the Bruins have won with ruthless—and sometimes boring—regularity. With Wicks graduated, however, it appears that Wooden will have to make do with merely mortal players this season.

So, with an opportunity to do something more than simply formalize UCLA's supremacy, at least a dozen schools realistically harbor title prospects. The favorite is USC, which lost only two games last year—both to UCLA. But there are enough other legitimate contenders to give promise of a year that should make up in competition what it lacks in artistry.

The top 10 prospects:

1 Southern California
(70-71 record: 24-2)

Trojans, though they have won more NCAA sports titles over all than any other school, have yet to win first basketball championship. Coach Bob Boyd has good shot at it this time with solid core of veterans, led by 6-4 guard Paul Westphal, 6-8 center Ron Riley and 6-6 forward Joe Mackey, all seniors. Health problems may idle two redshirted forwards, soph Bruce Clark and senior Monroe Nash, which would hurt. With relatively easy schedule, Trojans may not really be tested until Feb. 5, when they meet UCLA in Pacific 8 game.

2 Ohio State
(70-71 record: 20-6)

Like USC, Buckeyes have a balance, experience. Keys are two juniors, 6-1 guard Allan Hornyak and 7-0 center Luke Witte, both impressive last season. Coach Fred Taylor also expects — and will need — strong showing from two sophs, 6-7 forward Wardell Jackson and 6-4 guard Dan Gerhard, to complement four competent but unspectacular veterans. Should dominate Big 10, anyway.

3 Marquette
(70-71 record: 28-1)

Warriors didn't lose all year until Ohio State upset them in NCAA regionals last spring. While graduation took mainstays Dean Meminger and Gary Brelle, 6-11 center Jim Chones, one of few college stars to resist pro lures, is back and should be best all-around pivot man in country. Tough junior Bob Lackey and soph Larry McNeil should do job at forward. Guard is problem spot with coach Al McGuire's son Albie only veteran. Rough defensive team should be primed for play-offs after grueling independent schedule.

4 Long Beach (Calif.)
(70-71 record: 24-5)

Versatile 6-6 guard Ed Ratleff leads Pacific Athletic

HOPE (ARK.) STAR, Printed by Offset

Association's upstart 49ers, who gave UCLA a scare in last year's Western Regionals. A 6-11 transfer from Creighton, Nate Stephens, joins returning 6-9 center Bob Lynn and 6-6 forward Chuck Terry to provide up-front strength while red-shirted Tom Motley joins Ratleff in backcourt. Long shot, anyone?

5 Maryland
(70-71 record: 14-12)

Terrapins count on 6-11 soph center Tom McMillen to be second coming of Jabbar. But he's just one of whole forest of big sophs rounded up by coach Lefty Driesell, including 6-9 defensive ace Len Elmore, 7-0 Mark Cartwright. Two other sophs, Jap Trimble and Rich Porac, will make it hard for returnees Jim O'Brien and Howard to keep jobs. If McMillen matures fast enough, they could surprise.

6 Houston
(70-71 record: 22-7)

Independent Cougars have three vets back, 6-7 forward Dwight Davis, one of best, 6-7 Steve Newsome and 6-4 Jerry Bonney. Three big sophs, Stanley Edwards, Dwight Jones and Mack Mitchell, will add muscle in front line. Cougars will take away a lot of business from alumnus Elvin Hayes and NBA's new Houston Rockets.

7 UCLA
(70-71 record: 29-1)

Where have we heard that name before? Yes, fans, they may be down but they're not out. Wooden has come up with another group of red-hot sophs off assembly line (the frosh were unbeaten last year). Guard Henry Bibby, only veteran starter, should be joined by 6-10 center Bill Walton, 6-6 forward Keith Wilkes and 6-4 guard Greg Lee, all sophs, and 6-5 junior forward Larry Farmer, with a bunch of panting redshirts from last season waiting in wings. They'll hold their own, but contrary to public opinion, James Naismith didn't write UCLA titles into the rules.

8 St. John's (NY)
(70-71 record: 18-9)

Class of the East (which may be damning them with faint praise), the Redmen lost nobody of consequence to graduation or hardship draft. Best of lot is 6-7 forward Mel Davis, greedy rebounder, with 6-5 Bill Schaeffer, 6-8 Greg Cluess, 7-0 Bill Phillips around to help. Soph help from 6-11 Bill Bozeal, 6-3 Kevin Raftery should give enough depth to make them a threat.

9 North Carolina
(70-71 record: 26-6)

Four starters are back from team that won NIT title and coach Dean Smith has 6-9 soph Bob Jones, 6-10 transfer Robert McAdoo to replace graduated center Lee Dedmon. Forwards should be Dennis Wuycik and Bill Chamberlain, with George Karl and Steve Previs at guards. Though nobody will mistake them for best team in history, they're solid enough to battle Maryland for Atlantic Coast Conference title.

10 Brigham Young
(70-71 rec.: 18-11)

The best Yugoslavian center this side of Belgrade, 6-11 Kresimir Cosic, guard Bernie Fryer lead seven returning Cougar lettermen in trying to defend Western Athletic Conference title. Also on hand are sophs who led last year's frosh to 100-plus scoring average. Belmont Anderson, Doug Richards and 7-0 Steve Lackey.

OTHER TEAMS TO WATCH:
Louisville, Jacksonville, Michigan, Kentucky, Penn., South Carolina, Pacific, Kansas, Providence, Princeton, Oklahoma, Harvard, Western Kentucky, Florida State, New Mexico State, Furman.

Auburn Duo Paces NEA All-America

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA)—The Auburn passing combination of quarterback Pat Sullivan and wide receiver Terry Beasley highlights the 1971 College All-American Football Team released today by Newspaper Enterprise Association.

Not since Gus Dorais and Knute Rockne have two collegians played catch with a football so spectacularly as Sullivan and Beasley.

And not since Red Grange—or at least Steve Owens—has a collegian run so forcefully as Ed Marinaro of Cornell, one of the three running backs on this year's All-American squad. This season, Marinaro broke the all-time career college rushing record set two seasons ago by Owens.

Joining Marinaro in the offensive backfield are Greg Pruitt of Oklahoma and Bobby Moore of Oregon.

Of the 22 players selected this season, only two are repeaters. They are both on the defensive team: back Clarence Ellis of Notre Dame and tackle Mel Long of Toledo.

There is also an abundance of juniors on the team. On offense, there are receiver Johnny Rodgers of Nebraska, tackle Jerry Sise-more of Texas and Pruitt. On defense, there are end Willie Harper and middle guard Rich Glover, both of Nebraska.

Nebraska leads the All-American team with three players — Rodgers, Harper and Glover. Auburn has two (Sullivan and Beasley), Notre Dame has two (Ellis and defensive end Walt Patulski) and Michigan has two (linebacker Mike Taylor and offensive guard Reginald McKenzie).

Two of the most highly rated players in the country are offensive tackle John Vella of Southern California and Royce Smith of Georgia. Pro scouts and college coaches alike say that these two players have virtually no peer at their positions.

Ohio State's standout center, Tom DeLeone, rounds out the offensive team.

Bobby Majors who has carried on a family football tradition, joins Ellis and Craig Clemons of Iowa in the defensive secondary. Clemons has also been an outstanding punt and kickoff return specialist.

Tackle Sherman White of California and linebackers Charlie Zapiec of Penn State and Dave Chanev of San Jose State round out the defensive team.
